

Prompt

Most people have a favorite day of the week. Some might like Mondays most of all, while others may think Monday is a horrible day! Others love Friday or Saturday best. If you had to choose, which day of the week would you say is your favorite?

Write an essay explaining why a certain day of the week is your favorite.

My favorite day would have to be Saturday, simply because there's less things to worry about. Monday through Friday you have to worry about stuff like boring homework! Saturday is a day to relax and do fun stuff. You can do anything you set your mind to on Saturday. But sometimes Saturday can be cursed. Because school gives you too much homework that it goes beyond Friday into Saturday. That's why I love Saturday so much, you never know what's exactly going on. This day can be your friend or it can be your enemy. That's just a few of the beauties of Saturday, wait till you read the next paragraph!

So, here you are, at the next paragraph, continuously reading about Saturday. Then you think to your self, "Self, why am I here grading this ridiculously inspirational paper when really I should be enjoying my Saturday?" But you know if you get up you could be fired.

The last paragraph was a prime example of how a Saturday could be your enemy. Saturday comes all with surprise and is quite enjoyable when used correctly. And with the last sentence you think to your self, "Self, why not waste my Sunday grading ridiculously inspirational paper so I can use my → Saturday in the correct manner?" Then you burst from your seat with the enthusiasm of Saturday and forget your problems until tomorrow, when Saturday is only a memory.

THE END.....

Until next Saturday anyway.